Following in the mould of 'Silver Arrows in Camera', this book explores in period photographs the extraordinary story of the BRM V16, which raced between 1950 and 1954. Over 400 photographs, including a small amount of rare colour pictures are accompanied by an informative commentary. BRM (British Racing Motors) was a motor racing venture created in 1950 to represent Britain in the new Formula 1 category. A symbol of Britain's post-war rebirth, the BRM car did nothing by halves: its 1.5-litre 16-cylinder supercharged engine and advanced specification made it a technical tour de force, but it earned a reputation as a fantastic folly, such that Stirling Moss described it as 'without doubt the worst car I ever drove'. This book is a fascinating portrait of a racing car that still engenders enduring fascination. This is the story as told by a man who was both a devoted fan and a loyal team member of British Racing Motors. He saw and was involved in the repeated failures and humiliating times of the 1950s, through the gradual progress of winning minor races to Jo Bonnier winning the first World Championship Grand Prix in Holland in 1959. It culminates in the ultimate honor in 1962, when, in East London, South Africa, Graham Hill drove the BRM to victory to win both the drivers World Championship and the Constructors Championship for the BRM team, thereby making a considerable contribution to British motor racing history. Doug Nye is the world's most respected author and researcher on the historic racing scene and Tony Rudd's distinguished motor industry career included many years as BRM designer and chief engineer. Little wonder, then, that their first volume of BRM v the Saga of British Racing Motors was hailed as the most detailed and authoritative history of a grand prix team ever published. It covers the tortured birth of BRM, and takes readers through the years of the troublesome V16 cars and the 4-cylinder 2.5-litre models of the 1950s. Having unique access to the BRM company files, the authors have delved deeply into the emotion-charged background to the BRM team's creation, its near-collapse and then its troubled survival prior to its final emergence as a front-running Grand Prix team. The team's creator Raymond Mays and its great benefactor Sir Alfred Owen, as well as drivers like Stirling Moss, Juan Manuel Fangio, Froilan Gonzales, Tony Brooks, Jo Bonnier and many other stars of the past all figure prominently in this remarkable motor racing saga. Continues to reveal the tortured history of Britain's most emotionally charged and passionately operated Formula 1 racing team. Doug Nye is the world's most respected author and researcher on the historic racing scene and Tony Rudd's distinguished motor industry career included many years as BRM designer and chief engineer. Little wonder, then, that their first volume of BRM - the Saga of British Racing Motors was hailed as the most detailed and authoritative history of a grand prix team ever published. It covered the birth of BRM, and took readers through the years of the troublesome V16 cars and the 4-cylinder 2.5-litre models of the 1950s. Now, Volume 2 of their four-volume BRM history takes the story forward into the V8 era with the last of the cars built around a tubular chassis. It covers the most successful period in the Formula 1 team's career, including the World Championship won with Graham Hill in 1962, the first two of his five wins at Monaco and the first two of his three victories in the US Grand Prix at Watkins Glen. Having unique access to the BRM company files, the authors have been able to delve deeply into the emotion-charged background to the BRM team's final emergence as a Grand Prix front runner, to their involvement in the Tasman races in Australasia and to their first foray at Le Mans with the Rover-BRM gas turbine cars. As with Volume 1, the print run of this and succeeding volumes is being restricted to 2500 numbered copies. Volume 3, to be published late-2003, will concentrate on the V8-powered monocoque cars from 1964 to 1968, leaving the final volume, to be published in 2004, to conclude the saga of BRM with the H16 and V12 cars from 1968 to 1978.* Please note: As Volume 1 is out of print, the publishers will be commissioning a short reprint of unnumbered copies later in 2003 to enable new subscribers to complete their four-volume set. Bruce Benedict, the owner of Battlefield Resumes, developed the Battlefield Resume Methodology (BRM) to help veterans like himself obtain the jobs they want and deserve. He leveraged his 21 years of military service and formulated an easy to understand "doctrine" for veteran job seekers. The BRM helps applicants effortlessly make sense of the civilian workforce by understanding, adapting to, and exploiting the civilian hiring process. The BRM encourages applicants to use and leverage military tactics, techniques, and procedures when job searching, networking, resume writing, and interviewing. BRM focuses the applicant's time and energy on a targeted job announcement, while developing a tactically-sound employment strategy based on phases of a military operation. Although Bruce's methodology is aggressive, he purposely built the BRM in an easy to understand step-by-step method that anyone can comprehend and follow (even non-veterans). The "civilian world" can feel unfamiliar and unforgiving, but if you use the BRM, you will quickly learn how to find the jobs for which you are qualified, while obtaining jobs at the highest salary possible. Monty, an energetic puppy who gets into lots of trouble, has difficulty following the many rules of his house, and if he can't follow the rules, he might be in the doghouse for good. George Eliot U.S. demonstrates the complex and reciprocal relationship between George Eliot's fiction and the writings of her major American contemporaries, including Nathaniel Hawthorne, Harriet Beecher Stowe, and Ralph Waldo Emerson. The book also traces Eliot's influence on subsequent American fiction. The introductory section raises methodological questions concerning influence and intertextuality and addresses the mutual reception of European and American social and cultural discourses in order to illuminate culturally motivated divergences and convergences in the authors' presentation of gender, race, and national and ethnic alterity. The book's main body discusses Eliot's and the American writers' depiction of domestic social discourses on gender, religion, and community, and analyzes their depiction of the cultural alterity of Italy. It also focuses on Eliot's and Stowe's different attitudes toward race (and nation building), and discusses the parallels between the kabbalistic passages of Daniel Deronda and American transcendentalist thought. and social life in works by later writers such as Cynthia Ozick and John Irving. Monika Mueller teaches American and English literature at the University of Cologne. Four friends become the prisoners of a crazed killer who decides who will live—and who will die Molloy, Lynne, Daisy, and Toni are headed for summer school at Salem University, where they'll officially be freshmen in the fall. But their journey takes an unexpected detour when they're stranded by a violent storm. They take refuge at the deserted Nightingale Hall, an off-campus dorm haunted by a tragic past. What the four girls don't know is that someone else has taken shelter there: a psychopath who's on the run after murdering a prominent psychiatrist. The electricity is off. The phones are dead. Someone has locked the doors from the inside and nailed all the windows shut. There's no escape for Molloy and her friends, who are at the mercy of a madman with no intention of letting any of them leave—at least not alive. This ebook features an illustrated biography of Diane Hoh including rare photos and never-before-seen documents from the author's personal collection. There was a vast difference between the BRM and any other car I'd yet driven. When I opened the throttle, even at high speeds in top gear, the whole thing shuddered with a frightening surge of power. It could spin its wheels effortlessly at speeds equal to many other cars' maximum. It was doing 187 on the straight at Monza, which was too quick for a car that didn't handle. If you let the revs drop much below 9000 the car just wouldn't go at all." Sir Stirling Moss. The extraordinary Saga of the BRM Formula 1 racing team has previously been related in exhaustive detail in the first two Volumes of the author's remarkable history of this legendary marque. Volume 3, details the story of the monocoque-chassised V8 Formula 1 and Tasman cars which BRM designed, manufactured and campaigned between 1963 and 1968, and which private owners continued to run for two further seasons. These were the exquisite 'Swiss watch' BRM V8s which were only narrowly defeated in the World Championships of 1964 and 1965 when they were driven by BRM's former World Champion Driver Graham Hill and his meteoric young team-mate, protege and future triple World Champion Jackie Stewart. The entire drama is related in painstaking and enormously revealing detail - warts and all - supported by contemporary internal reports, private correspondence and often hilarious first-person recollections and anecdotes from team members, including numerous team mechanics and engineers, in addition to Tony Rudd, Graham Hill and Sir Jackie Stewart. Volume 3 also embraces BRM's involvement in Formula 2, the Tasman Championship in Australasia, Le Mans and Indy projects with Chrysler Corporation and even an experimental 'Jumping Jeep' for military assessment.

Jeremy Halstead graduated from college with a degree in Specialized Ministries and an emphasis in Youth Ministry. Shortly after entering full-time ministry, he realized that even though he had earned a degree, he was truly ill-equipped for the ministry that he was now serving in. Jeremy surmised that he could not be the only youth leader who felt this way, so nineteen years later he wrote this book based upon his ideas, experiences, stories, victories, and failures. The title of the book may sound a bit strange, but everyone uses the bathroom, and most people read while doing so--why not read about what you love and are involved in: youth ministry. This book was written to be a tool for youth workers. You can read it from beginning to end, or just open it to any page, as there is no rhyme or reason to the order of the topics. As you read the pages be inspired to try something new, be educated with fresh information and ideas, and be equipped to implement what you have read immediately into your ministry. Prayers of praise and worship and cry for help. Just ask and it shall be given, you have a right to ask the Lord for anything. You have the right to go boldly to the throne of Almighty God and ask for what you want. You have the right just as anyone else. Pray and believe God, He can do all things, far more than your imagination can reach. Matthew 7 v 7 and Matthew 21 v 22. Probably for the first time, criticism is leveled at both Louis Stanley, and the introduction of the H16 engine as contributory factors to the failure of British Racing Motors. Louis Stanley for his freeloading extravagance, and the rather foolish decision by the management to specify such a complicated and bulky power unit.
